

Selena Coppock (www.selenacoppock.com) is a standup and sketch comedian, writer, improviser, and recipient of the title “Best Hair” from her H.S. graduating class. Best Hair, people! She has studied both improv and sketch comedy extensively, training at ImprovOlympic (Chicago), The Upright Citizens Brigade Theatre (NY), and ImprovAsylum (Boston). Since shifting her focus to standup and sketch comedy, Selena has earned spots in a multitude of comedy festivals, including the Boston Comedy Festival, New York Comedy Competition, Detroit Comedy Festival, North Carolina Comedy Arts Festival, and the Ladies Are Funny Festival (Austin, TX). Her comedy writing has been featured on McSweeney’s, the Collared Sheep, and Rock Bottom Stories. Selena has studied on-camera technique with Brooke Thomas and Mary Egan Callahan and recently filmed her first product web commercial. She has also been featured on The Morning Show with Mike and Juliet (FOX), TheApiary.com, Comedysmack.com, Collegehumor.com, and in the Boston Phoenix, Boston Metro, and the Boston Globe.
